The house I know is standing there still,
And to Albert C. Lewis belongs,
On the road from Newark toward Ironhill,
The garden, as well as the lawn,
And lombardy poplars, are they standing ye
Or are they by time cut down,
How off I played 'neath their cooling shad
With associates long since gone.

With associates tools side goved.

That blossomed so white in the Spring, Where the mocking bird warbled its notes And the roblin in the morning did sing. Full fifty-six years have passed and gone Since I left my infantile home And gone through the world to buffet storms.

It seems a great while thus to roam;

own to us of Thomas Jefferson, and of Here is one worth relating :

Mr. Jefferson was in the habit o Mr. Jefferson was in the habit of driving himself in a gig, when he made his visit to his country seat, Monticello, at Charlottesville, Virginia. He preferred this mode of traveling to the stage coach, and of railways there were none then between Washington and his rural residence On one of his trips he saw a boy, poorly clad, trudging along the roadside, and accosted him, asking him if he would like a ride. The boy promp ly and frankly accepted the invitation, and soon charmed his unknown friend by his ingenious, boyish convervitation, and soon charmed his unknown friend by his ingenious, boyish conversation. After a time Mr. Jefferson asked his companion if he had ever heard of Tom Jefferson?

"Oh, yes," was the boy's quick response. "My dad says he's the biggest rascal that ever lived."

rascal that ever lived."

Nothing daunted by this unexpected answer, the President continued the conversation; and when in reply to allusions purposely made to Jefferson the lad would exclaim that "dad said he was a traitor to his country." he would say, in explanation, "Oh, perhaps you would not find him such a bad fellow after all." When he reached the point where his companion must leave the same and t after all " When he reached the point where his companion must leave him. Mr Jefferson said, as he lightly leaped

"I want to be a colonel," was the answer, in which Charley persisted in reply to the question when put to him, until one day a playfellow was brought to him in the shape of a young midshipman When, after enjoying the society of his new acquaintance for a short time, the President once more questioned him as to his wishes in regard to his future. ary decision, that nothing but the navy would meet his desires.

To his great delight, Mr. Jefferson told him that his wishes in this respect could be gratified. The sequel to the story is easily told. The boy entered the navy, and served his country nobly during the rest of his life. And Commodore Morgan, I am told by those who knew him, always preserved the honest simplicity of character and fearlessness which so attragted "Tom" Jefferson when he met the outspoken ferson when he met the outspoken Charley Morgan on the Virginia high-

A Physician's Story.

Dr. Munro, of Hull, gives this inci dent in his life as a practicing physible moral:

A bard-working, industrious, God standing, suffering from an abscess in the hand, which had reduced him very the band, which had reduced nim very much, applied to me for advice. I told him the only medicine he required was rest; and to remedy the waste going on in his system, and to repair the damage done to his hand, he was to support binaself with a bottle of stout daily. He realied:

teetotaler for some years"
"Well," I said, "if you know better than the doctor, it is of no use applying

He looked anxiously in my face, evidently weighing the matter over in his mind, and sorrowfully replied:
"Doctor, I was a drunken man once, and should not like to be one again"
He was, much against his will, prevailed upon to take the stout, and in time the recovered from his sickness. When he got well, I, of course, praised up the virtues of stout as a means of saving his life, for which he ought ever to be thankful. I rather lectured him on being such a fanatic (that's the word) as to refuse taking a bottle of stout daily to restore him to his former health. I lost sight of my patient for some aniy to restore that to his former health.

I lost sight of my patient for some months; but I am sorry to say that on one fine summer's day, when driving through one of the public thorough fares, I saw a poor, miserable, ragged-looking man, leaning against the door of a public house, drunk, and incapable fleening an erect position. In his where his compound:

Mr Jefferson said, as he lightly leaped to the ground:

"You can tell your dad you had a ride with Tom Jefferson, and he is not such a bad fellow."

"Dogged if I do!" exclaimed the youth. "Dad would give me the worst licking I ever had if he knew I had been riding with you."

Still anused at the youth's persistence, Mr. Jefferson said in a kindly tone:

"Now, my little fellow, I want you to come and see me at the White House, in Washington; and you'll find that in Washington; and would find the was a stonished to find the

After a few days, during which the President had greatly enjoyed the outspoken frankness and fearless nature of the acquaintance picked up by the wayside, he inquired of young Morgan what be could do for him

Four Revolutions in a Day.
The Mexicans, like all their Spanish-American brethren, are skilled in get-burt each other.

During the summer of 1863, a Southern gentleman happened to be in Matamoras, the capital of the State of Tamaulipas, Republic of Mexico.

One morning his black servant failed

o put in an appearance until two hours fter his usual time. 'What's the matter. Ben ?" exclain

"What's the matter, Ben?" exclaimed the master, as the negro, in great excitement, came running in.
"Don't know, massa. Spec' dar's a revolution going on. I'se been in de culaboose does two hours."

Going out to get his breakfast, the gentleman saw Gov. Ruiz making excellent time down the street, bareheaded, and pursued by a file of soldiers.—Knowing that the first act in a Mexican revolution was to lock up all persons found out, the gentleman retired to his room. After waiting two hours, he ventured out, and was told that since the previous night, Matamoras had two chief magistrates, and that the third, one Serna, was new to be inaugurated. Having a slight acquaintance with Serna, the gentleman wont to his office to obtain a passport, that he might leave.

Stopped on the Highway.

Col. Joseph Hanson, of the Governor Aids, reported that while returning home on Thursday night, (hour not given) from a visit somewhere in the direction of Warwick, his horse was stopped by two men on the public highway, near Governor Cochran's gate, whose intentions were evidently either malicieus or officious. The Colonel is much exercised over it, and thinks it hard that he cannot make an evening visit without being ku-kluxed on his homeward way. Very good advice to the gallant Colonel is not to stay out so late.

James B. Naudain, Esq., was appointed, last week, by Governor Cochran, a justice of the peace, "in and for New Castle county," to reside in Middletown. Mr. N. received the commission on Friday night, and had his first case the next day—one that had commenced under the jurisdiction of Esquire Walker. Our new judge has established his court at the rooms of the managers of the P. A. & P. Association, of which he is secretary, where he may (almost) always be found.—Business placed in his hands, we feel justified in saying, will receive careful and prompt attention.

PETERSON'S MAGAZINE for March opens with an exquisite steel engraving, "Coming Home," which is alone worth the price of the number. This is followed by a double-sized colored fashion plate, with five figures, a very beautiful affair. Then comes a colored patters for a tidy, on Java canvas: then a charming engraving, "The Fast Express;" and then some forty other illustrations of fashions, work-table patterns, &c., &c. The stories are unusually good this month. We notice particularly, a powerful one by Mrs. F. Hodgson Burnett. "Mademoiselle Suzette," and also Mrs. Ann S. Stephens' stirring novelet. "The Dependent Cousin." We do not see how any lady can do without this magazine, for it combines more attractions, and for a less price, than any other of the kind. The price to single subscribers is only two dollars a year. To clubs it is cheaper still. It is not too late to get up clubs for 1877, and perhaps many who thought they could not afford it in now, when times are unmistakeobly getting before. Specimens are sent, grails, to those wishing to get up clubs. Back numbers, to a Junuary inclusive, can always be furnished. Address Ciraatus J. Parmsson, 306 Chestnut Street. Philadelphia, Pa.

by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth; and always surely reatores its color, when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair regrows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and stablished; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hairs resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions disease of the scale are in the scale
